Abstract: This article discusses China's wine and liquor laws from both the historical and contemporary perspectives. [...]

Footnotes:

(Times New Roman 10p, justified, leading 0)

Other instructions to take into account:

If you are just citing a footnote without adding some text, use the following:

- See (n 5).
- See (nn 44, 45, 46-49).

“Ibid.” needs a point and isn't written in Italics.

Use "[...]" to mark interruptions in your quotes.

In footnotes, use [et seq.] as for "and what follows"

In text as well as in footnotes, never abbreviate the names of the months (and so be it January and not “Jan.”, etc.).

When you find it useful to emphasize on your own initiative such word or part, you will use italics and mention at the end of the reference note: "(our emphasis)". Where it is essential to inform the reader that the underline is the source author's fact, the following should be added at the end of the reference note: "(emphasis added)".

For French-language journals, refer to the document "Abbreviations of Journal Names" (transmitted with "Instructions to Authors"); for foreign language journals, refer to the document "Cardiff Index to Legal Abbreviations" or go to the website <http://www.legalabbrevs.cardiff.ac.uk/site/index>.

Before submitting your final text, always check for any double space (“ “) and that your case-law is correctly cited (italics for the names of the parties with an unpunctuated italic v to separate the names of adverse parties).
